FARMERSVILLE, Texas -- A Collin County mother who disappeared from her Farmersville home last week remained missing Monday.

There was still no sign of Rachel Tolleson, despite an aggressive search during the weekend by professionals with United Response Search and Rescue Team and hundreds of volunteers on dirt bikes and four-wheelers.

The 20-year-old woman they are searching for was last seen Wednesday night.

The following morning, relatives found Tolleson's 6-month-old child alone in their home.

The back door of the house was reportedly unlocked, but there were no obvious signs of trouble.

Still, the woman's relatives suspect foul play.

"We found my daughter's baby in the house, alone, and we know that there's no way my daughter would ever leave her baby at home," Tolleson's father, Mark O'Neil, said last week. "Nothing was missing. The shoes she had on were still in the house."
